Electronic Communications

The Institution of Civil Engineers (ICE) Benevolent Fund's Articles of Association enable the ICE Benevolent Fund to communicate to its members by electronic means any documentation and information that comes within the scope of the Companies Act 2006. This means that ICE Benevolent Fund will be able to send communications to its members by various means, including e-mail or by posting relevant documentation on its website. Full details of these means of communication are included at Article 14 of ICE Benevolent Fund's Articles of Association. The documentation and information will include, by way of example, AGM notices, proxy forms etc.

It will be of great help to ICE Benevolent Fund to effect communications in this manner, as it will reduce the administrative workload involved in sending out hard copy documents and will enable us to focus the saved costs on our primary objectives. However, before ICE Benevolent Fund may contact members by electronic means, The Companies Act 2006 obliges us to seek each member's individual consent to:

- i. Being contacted by e-mail; and
- ii. Being notified of any documentation and information posted on its website.

For this reason, we are asking those seeking to become members of ICE Benevolent Fund for authorisation to our contacting you by electronic means. We propose to use e-mail and website communication indefinitely and wherever possible, in relation to documentation to be provided under the Companies Act 2006 and any other communication that ICE Benevolent Fund may wish to provide to its members.

Please indicate your consent or refusal to the above proposal on the application form for membership. If you do consent, please also provide details of your current e-mail address where indicated.

Please note that if we do not receive your consent or any explicit withholding of your consent on your application form, within 28 days of our request being sent to you, we will deem you to have rejected being contact by email, but you will be deemed to have agreed to accept notices on ICE Benevolent Fund's website. In such circumstances, we will send you notice of any documentation appearing on our website by post. You will remain entitled to withdraw your deemed consent at any time by writing to us and notifying us of the fact.

In the event that you wish to withhold your consent to electronic communications, we will continue to provide you with all correspondence and documentation by hard copy.

If you do consent to our communicating with you by electronic means, you remain entitled to request a hard copy of any relevant documentation at any time.

Please note that there may be particular circumstances in which ICE Benevolent Fund needs to send documents or information to you in hard copy rather than by e-mail, website or social media, in which case ICE Benevolent Fund reserves the right to do so.
